Apprenticeships

What is an Apprenticeship?

An Apprenticeship is a real job where you learn, gain experience and get paid. You're an employee with a contract of employment and holiday leave. By the end of an apprenticeship, you'll have the right skills and knowledge needed for your chosen career.

It can take between one and six years to complete an Apprenticeship depending on which one you choose, what level it is and your previous experience. It's funded from contributions made by the government and your employer.

Levels of an Apprenticeship

Apprenticeships are currently available in four levels with many offering the opportunity for progression at LMC

	Level	Equivalent education level
Intermediate	2	GCSE
Advanced	3	A level
Higher	4 & 5	Foundation degree and above

What are the entry requirements?

Anyone living in England, aged over 16 and not in full-time education can apply to become an apprentice, whether you are just leaving school, have been working for years or simply looking to start a new career. If you are already employed, you can also apply to become an apprentice as part of your Continuous Professional Development.

Entry requirements do vary between courses and the level of study. If you do not currently hold GCSE A*-C/9-4 or equivalent, you will have to study Functional Skills in Maths & English alongside your apprenticeship. Some apprenticeships require you to hold a Math & English qualification before you commence on programme. Applicants will only be able to undertake an apprenticeship if they are in a suitable job role which includes the necessary competencies for them to demonstrate all aspects of the assessment criteria.

As part of the application process, you will also need to provide us with a completed CV and be willing to attend an interview which will often be requested by employers. All applicants will undertake an initial assessment for Maths and English. If you do not hold a formal qualification in Maths & English a diagnostic assessment will be carried out under exam conditions to determine your suitability. You may also be required to follow a set dress code or uniform whilst in the workplace and show a willingness to work either as an individual or as part of a team. Most importantly of all however, you must show a commitment to your Apprenticeship throughout.

What are the benefits of doing an Apprenticeship?

Skills, knowledge & behaviours

An Apprenticeship is all about developing new skills, knowledge and behaviours within your chosen sector. Whether you chose to stay with your employer on completion, study at a higher level or train in a new area, many of these new skills will be transferable and set you up for life!

● Real job benefits

As an apprentice, you will have a contract of employment with the employer which could typically include all regular employee benefits such as holiday allowance, bank holidays, pensions and continuous professional development (CPD).

● Earn as you learn

As an apprentice, you will 'earn as you learn'. Although salaries will vary by employer, if you are under the age of 19 or in the first 12 months of your apprenticeship, you are entitled to at least the National Apprenticeship Minimum Wage. You will also be paid during any 'off-the-job-training'. Some employers may pay more than National Apprenticeship Minimum Wage. For information on National Minimum wages please visit: gov.uk/national-minimum-wage-rates.

● Fee free qualifications

Apprenticeships are becoming a popular alternative to university for students wishing to begin a career whilst continuing their education. Unlike a university course, you will not have to pay for your qualifications during your training as the costs are covered by either the Government or your employer.

● Employability & career prospects

Your Apprenticeship will give you nationally recognised qualifications and key skills which will be hugely beneficial to career progression and future employability prospects.

How do I apply for an Apprenticeship?

An Apprenticeship is the perfect choice if you want to continue your studies by developing your skills, knowledge and behaviours, whilst also earning a salary.

It can be your first step in helping to decide on a long-term career, OR it can be a way to upskill in your current role.
